The tab for getting hitched is going up, up, up

CNN

NEW YORK Brides and grooms spent more on their big wedding days last year than they have since the beginning of the economic downturn.

In 2012, newlyweds and their families spent an average of $28,427 on weddings and related events—the highest amount since 2008, according to an annual survey of 17,500 couples released by wedding website theknot.com.

"Couples are a little bit more comfortable and able to splurge a little bit more," said site director Anja Winikka.

Same-sex couples, who were surveyed for the first time in 2012, spent slightly more on their weddings than heterosexual couples did, despite having fewer guests.

Overall, couples increased spending in nearly all categories, from the photographer and wedding DJ to flowers and invites, the survey found. But spending still came in below the 2008 high of $29,334. Here's a look at the numbers.

The year of the guest

Many couples provided a variety of wedding extras that pushed average per-guest spending higher by almost $10 per person, to $204.

More than a quarter of all weddings included shuttles or buses to transport guests to the ceremony and reception. Spending on wedding extras like rehearsal dinners and morning-after brunches also increased.

More is more

At many weddings, a DJ or band was just not enough. Last year, 27 percent of weddings included additional entertainment—such as a photo booth or caricature artist—more than double the percentage who did so in 2011.

Surviving summer without Stewart?

Hector Luis Alamo Jr.

@hectorluisalamo

Three months. That's how long you'll have to go without America's most popular satirist—and, awkwardly enough, its most trusted newsman.

Jon Stewart is taking a three-month hiatus from "The Daily Show" this summer to direct his first movie, "Rosewater." Written by Stewart, the movie tells the true story of a former guest who was jailed by Iranian authorities while reporting on the elections there.

Obviously the film won't be in Stewart's sweet spot, comedy—which is like Steven Spielberg directing "The Hangover Part III" or James Franco writing poetry.

Less funny than Stewart's directorial debut will be the three months we'll have to survive without his uncanny ability to give us pertinent day-to-day information while reminding us how absurd it all is.

Sure, we'll have the stand-in, John Oliver, who is funny and witty and British to boot. But John is certainly no Jon.

There's something indescribably irreplaceable about Stewart. Even the equally famous "Daily Show" alum Stephen Colbert doesn't quite measure up to his old boss. Stewart comes across as more respectable, serious and trustworthy. Maybe it's all the gray hair.

Or maybe it's because unlike Colbert, who's playing a character, Stewart's just being Stewart, which allows him to be more versatile.

Stewart is sometimes a clown, sometimes a satirist, sometimes Joe Blow, sometimes an elitist, sometimes a raging liberal and sometimes a poised moderate. Just when you think he's merely a working-class comic who got lucky landing a hit show, he'll come at you with straight-up facts and critical thinking.

And you don't fully appreciate just who Jon Stewart is and what he does until you tune in and he makes you laugh at something the rest of the world seems to be losing hair over.

Yes, he can get a little Rachel Maddow-y here and there with his insistence that civilized society has begun its slow and inevitable circling of the drain. But for the most part, Stewart's the voice of reason telling everybody to calm down—unlike Maddow, who mounts her high horse every night and yells into the camera, "The Republicans are coming! The Republicans are coming!"

Jon never does that. He's more likely to get on a unicycle and warn, "The Republicans and Democrats are coming!"

That's what he means to America, or at least to millions of young people like me. He's the wisecrackin' uncle, the 21st century's Mark Twain, America's Oscar Wilde. Stewart is the guy who puts a reassuring hand on your shoulder and calmly points out the B.S.—which invariably turns out to be virtually everything.

This might read like a premature obituary for a man who's taking only three months off, but the fact that Stewart won't be there this summer to help us make sense of stuff is a discomforting thought. Lord knows the likes of CNN, MSNBC and Fox News won't help us make sense of any of it. (I'm still shaken up by the "Snowquaster.")

Stewart makes you laugh and think. He tells you to be serious and relax.

You need him. I need him. America needs him. Hurry back, Jon.

Could One Hour With This Doctor Give You The Answer To Your Disc Pain?

Now, in Downtown Chicago, IL one doctor has what may be the most important breakthrough in non-surgical back pain treatments. Before and after MRI studies have shown disc bulges shrink in size – even with the most painful cases of L4-L5 herniations.

If you've had disc problems for years, recently injured your back, or you're suffering with sciatica, you must hear about these new studies.

Scientific studies tell us that spinal discs are responsible for most of the aches and pains people suffer from. Discs act like a cushion between our backbones and allow for a space at each level so the nerves can exit the spinal column.

When these discs get injured or wear out from bad posture, they begin to degenerate and cause pain. Bulging and herniations begin to form, pressing on the nerve roots. If the herniations occur at L4-L5, they can severely compromise the large sciatic nerve, causing muscle weakness, tingling, and severe pain.

The most common invasive treatment for disc herniations is surgery. This costs quite a bit of money. Even with health insurance the patient is left with their own portion of the bill, in excess of $10,000-$15,000, and sometimes more. The recovery time and missed work can be anywhere from 3 to 6 months, not to mention the obvious severe risks associated with all surgery.

But here's the biggest problem...there is a high failure rate of back surgery. One medical study found that on average, 53% of L5-S1 back surgeries fail to produce relief of symptoms (International Orthop 1987.)

Before You Go Under The Knife And Opt For Spinal Surgery...

You should seriously consider a less invasive approach called spinal decompression.

Non-surgical spinal decompression is a new technology that has been proven to reverse disc herniations. It creates a vacuum effect on the disc, which pulls the disc back into its normal position and brings in a fresh blood supply to promote healing.

Spinal decompression treatments are very gentle. In fact, every once in awhile I even catch a patient sleeping during sessions.

You'll simply lie on your stomach or back, whichever is comfortable, and then a specialized belt is gently put around your waist. We'll set the machine to focus on your problem area – then the advanced decompression computer system will do the rest. Most patients feel better with just a few treatments, and best of all there will be no dangerous drugs, no invasive procedures, and no painful exercises.

The Research Behind This Treatment

One clinical study has shown non-surgical spinal decompression to be extremely successful (good or excellent relief) in 86% of patients with herniated discs and degenerative joint disease – without the side effects.

Another study presented at the American Academy of Pain Management in 2007 showed...

"Patients reported a mean 88.9% improvement in back pain and better function...No patient required any invasive therapies (e.g. epidural injections, surgery)."

As you can see, spinal decompression has a high success rate with helping disc herniations, sciatica, and back pain. In just a matter of weeks you could be back on the golf course, enjoying your love life, or traveling again.

Here's What Our Patients Say...

"Before treatment on the Spinal Decompression Table I could not put very much weight on my left leg. I could not walk or stand for long periods of time and had tremendous pain in my lower back and down my left leg. Since having treatments the pain is gone! I can walk and put weight on my left leg. Would highly recommend and have told friends about my results."

Feel the Improvement – and Say "Yes" to Life Again

With my "Decompression Evaluation" we'll be able find the problem and then correct it. Think of how you'll feel in just a few short weeks. See and feel your life change for the better. Start your body on the way to pain-free, normal living. Feel tight joints rest, relax, free up. Feel muscles tied in knots become more supple. Feel strength in your muscles increase.

You're able to live life like a normal person again, without back pain – able to play with your kids, enjoy time with friends, and finally get a good night's rest.

FOR THOSE SUFFERING WITH HERNIATED LUMBAR DISCS, A NON-SURGICAL, DRUGLESS SOLUTION IS HELPING PATIENTS BE PAIN FREE.

The Single Most Important Solution To Your Sciatica and Back Pain

It's time for you to find out if spinal decompression will be your sciatic and back pain solution. For 10 days only, I'm running a very special offer where you can find out if you are a candidate for spinal decompression.

What does this offer include?

Everything I normally do in my new patient evaluation. Just call before March 25, 2013 and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your health and well-being where I will listen...really listen...to the details of your case.
- A complete neuromuscular examination.
- A full set of specialized x-rays to determine if a spinal problem is contributing to your pain or symptoms. These cost $125.
- A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can start mapping out your plan to being pain free.
- You'll get to see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients.

Until March 25, 2013 you can get everything I've listed here for only $35. The normal price for this type of evaluation including x-rays is $250, so you're saving $231 by taking me up on this offer.

Here's what to do now:

Due to the expected demand for this treatment, I suggest calling my office at once. The phone number is 312-212-1150.

IRISH PRIDE

No arrests reported in second year of South Side parade's comeback

Chicago Tribune

Not even a knee replacement could stop Pat Duignan from marching in the South Side Irish St. Patrick's Day Parade, viewing the event through a mesh eye slot cut in the middle of a shamrock.

The 74-year-old parade veteran plodded along 12 blocks of South Western Avenue in Chicago on Sunday wearing her signature leprechaun outfit and saluting the green-clad youngsters lined three- and four-deep along the route.

"I can still do it," the retired nurse said at the end of her march through the Beverly and Morgan Park communities. "It's lots of fun."

This was the second parade since police arrested 54 people in 2009, when the event spawned a drunken melee. This year, Chicago police blanketed the 1.5-mile route with at least a dozen officers on most blocks.

The zero-tolerance approach to alcohol possession and public urination seemed to work. No arrests had been reported by 5 p.m., Officer Daniel O'Brien said. Two citations were issued: one for operating as an illegal vendor and another for possession of cannabis.

After a two-year hiatus, a scaled-down version of the parade returned last year to the heavily Irish area of the Far South Side. Kevin Coakley, one of the event's co-chairmen, said the 90 entries this year marked about a 20 percent increase over 2012 but a drop from the 125 or so groups that marched four years ago. Organizers and police estimated that 150,000 people watched the parade.

The entrants included typical parade fare—high school marching bands, a state champion football team, waving dignitaries—with a distinctive Irish accent. Before the event started, the Chicago police and fire departments' bagpipe groups found shelter from the rain under an awning outside a Little Caesars pizza parlor. Nearby, riders placed green saddles on horses and a herd of Irish wolfhound owners gathered with their giant dogs—which, at a distance, could be mistaken for horses.

Duignan said the crackdown on inebriated patrons has helped restore the original spirit of the parade.

"I'm so glad it's back to the family tradition," Duignan said.

The South Side Irish St. Patrick's Day Parade brought out thousands of onlookers Sunday.

Park where lion attacked up and running again

5 FRESNO, Calif. The California wildlife sanctuary where an African lion attacked and killed a 24-year-old intern last week was scheduled to reopen to the public on Sunday, four days after the woman's death.

The Cat Haven preserve, which has been shut since Dianna Hanson's death on Wednesday, was to resume regular operations, including offering guided tours to visitors, Cat Haven officials said.

Hanson, who was on a six-month internship at Cat Haven that began in January and who had previously worked in Kenya on a wild feline reserve, was to be honored Sunday with a moment of silence at the sanctuary.

The big cat center, which is located 40 miles east of Fresno, will resume regular operations, including guided tours for visitors, Cat Haven officials said.

"It is important that we attend to [the animals'] health and well-being, and we believe returning to a state of normal operations is a part of that process," Cat Haven founder Dale Anderson said in a statement.

Hanson was attacked while cleaning an empty cat enclosure.

A 4-year-old male lion named Cous Cous escaped from his feeding pen, apparently by prodding open an improperly secured gate, and pounced on Hanson, fracturing her neck and killing her almost instantly, according to Fresno County Coroner David Hadden.

A security guard stands by the gate of the Cat Haven sanctuary near Dunlop, Calif., on Thursday. REUTERS

Sheriff's deputies later shot and killed the lion, which weighed at least 400 pounds, after failed efforts to coax him away from Hanson's body.

Cous Cous and his mate, Pely, were Barbary lions, a species from the region between Morocco and Egypt that is extinct in the wild. He had been handled by humans since he was weeks old.

INSIDE THE BOX

PLENTY GOES ON IN THE 'SIN BIN' AS THE HAWKS SERVE PENALTIES

By Brian Hedger | FOR REDEYE

It's one of the most quoted lines from the classic 1977 movie "Slapshot."

After using a stick to demonstrate slashing and other punishable offenses on the reporter's body, goalie Denis Lemieux (Yvon Barrette)—in a heavy French accent—says: "You do that, you go to the box, you know? ... And ... you feel shame, you know? And then, you get free."

Ah, freedom.

Every penalized player yearns for it the second the door inside hockey's "timeout" room slams shut. Sometimes players spar with the crowd, like in April 2010 when Duncan Keith squirted water on a Nashville fan. RedEye asked Blackhawks Bryan Bickell, Brandon Bollig and Andrew Shaw all about the "sin bin."

GUILT-FREE PENALTIES

It's a whole different kind of shame for goalies who get penalized in hockey. Even when he commits a penalty, somebody else gets sent to the box while he stays on the ice to face a power play. To get the goalie's take on the "sin bin," RedEye caught up with the Blackhawks' Corey Crawford. BY

Corey Crawford
US PRESSWIRE FILE

Have you ever been put in the penalty box?
Corey Crawford: I started as a forward and then I was a [defenseman] before I became a goalie. So, yeah, I've been in the box.

Do you feel guilty about another player serving your penalty?
Crawford: [Laughs.] No.

No?
Crawford: [Launches into impression of fictional French-speaking goalie Denis Lemieux from the movie "Slapshot"] "Do I ... feel dee shame, two minute?" No. No shame.

Have you ever been in an NHL penalty box?
Crawford: Uh ... no.

Are you even a little curious about what it's like to sit in there, waiting to be let out?
Crawford: Not really, no. I wish I had a better answer for you, man, but ... no.

What's going through your mind when you're in the penalty box?

Bryan Bickell: Usually just, "Don't score, don't score, don't score, don't score," pretty much. It depends. If you take a bad penalty, like a hooking call in the offensive zone, then you're in the box, and if there's a shot coming up on the other team's power play you're just clenching your teeth. If it's a penalty that denied them a good opportunity to score, I don't think you feel as bad—but you still don't want them to score.

Brandon Bollig: It just depends on what you're in there for. If you have a nice, long, spirited fight and it gets the crowd and your team all pumped up ... then you're obviously hoping that, if your team scores, it will at least help create some momentum off what you've done. If you're in there for a penalty, especially a bad one that you could have avoided, the whole time you're just kind of praying they don't score.

Do you chat with the guy who works in the penalty box?

Bickell: Oh yeah, the guy in there ... I don't know his name [at the United Center], actually, but he's been here for years. I should know his name. I've been in there a couple times. But we talk about the game or I'll say, "Oh, what did you think about that penalty?"

Bollig: Sometimes they're a little too chatty and sometimes they don't say a word. You also have different fans around you and you just hope if you're in there for five minutes, you get that whistle right away [after the penalty expires], so you can get out.

Andrew Shaw: If it's coincidental and I take a guy with me, I'm in a decent mood. But if I take a stupid penalty, I'm always upset with myself and I usually just shut 'er down. They're pretty nice, though. They're always talkative and especially here, you get to know them pretty good ... well, hopefully not as good as you want, but they all seem like great guys. They're always asking if you want water or need a towel or ice for the knuckles if you just got into a scrap or something.

What's it like with the fans when you're in the box?

Bickell: Some fans start yelling in the cracks of the glass or, like, in Vancouver they have those Green Men. I was in the box once in Vancouver and they were pumping the weights [pretends to flex biceps in exaggerated fashion]. I try to not look at 'em. I can see them in the peripheral vision doing stuff over there, but I don't want to encourage 'em.

Bollig: That's just part of playing on the road and I think it makes it more fun when fans get involved ... but only to a certain extent. It's usually pretty funny, though. I probably can't repeat it for the newspaper, but some of the stuff they come up with is pretty funny.

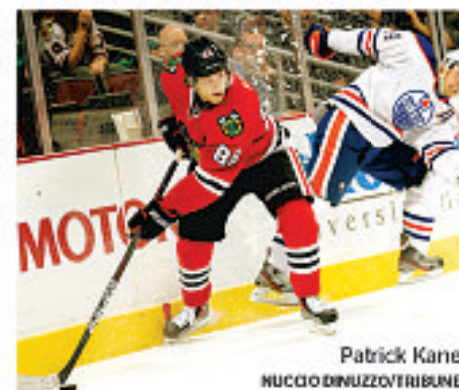

Shaw: Thank God I haven't been in the "sin bin" in Vancouver. I've seen some of the stuff on TV. I think it's pretty hysterical they do it for every game. I'd probably just look at 'em and smile.

Any other funny stories about the penalty box?

Shaw: When I played for Erie in the OHL [Ontario Hockey League], there was candy in the box. It was Starburst. One of my buddies got a penalty and he was in there, so his penalty was going to expire and there were only like 10 seconds left in the period. He stuffed his glove full of Starburst, but then he ended up getting out of the box and getting a breakaway. You could see the candy falling out of his glove while he was on the breakaway and it was pretty funny. That's the kind of stuff that happens in junior. You can't do that kind of stuff here.

What's buzzing in the Blackhawks' world

Patrick Kane
NUCCO DINUZZO/TRIBUNE

EDMONTON 6, BLACKHAWKS 5

The second half of the season hasn't quite gone the way the first did for the Blackhawks.

After having their 24-game streak to start the season without a regulation loss snapped two nights earlier, the Hawks fell for the second consecutive game as they came out on the short end of a wild contest, 6-5 to the Oilers on Sunday at the United Center.

The Hawks dropped to 21-2-3 on the season as goaltender Ray Emery didn't make it out of the first period as the speedy Oilers came out on top. Sam Gagner had two goals, Ryan Whitney and Taylor Hall each had a goal and an assist and Shawn Horcoff and Mike Brown also scored. Devan Dubynk didn't finish the game in goal for the Oilers after departing with an injury but earned the win.

Patrick Kane had two goals and an assist, Marian Hossa had a goal and an assist, and Sheldon Broobank and Brent Seabrook added scores.

1	Now that Derrick Rose has been medically cleared to play, what's he waiting for?	For the Hawks hoopla to die down so he can get the publicity he deserves.	At this point, I have no idea. But I'm strangely OK with it. He'll play when he's ready.	The season premiere of "Game of Thrones"? That's not just me, right?	A sign from God?	His knee is on the Cubs rebuilding plan timeline. "Wait til next year."
2	What was the best part about the Blackhawks' points streak?	That we can do it all over again with this team!	Every time the Hawks won, an angel got its wings.	It made people in Chicago start caring about hockey again. Kudos, guys.	Having something to talk about other than Derrick Rose's year-long recovery.	Naming Patrick Kane's shoot-out goal move vs. Detroit. Either the "Kane Dangle" or "Chi-Kane-ry."
3	Former Bear Anthony Adams won Dancing with Chicago Celebrities. What's he got?	A big retirement pension at 55 with the other NFL players!	Dancing with Chicago Celebrities is a thing?	The right to punch Chicago "celeb" Jim Belushi. Repeatedly.	A spot in next week's High Diving with Chicago Celebrities event.	A feature story written by Tracy Swartz. Adams' moves are better and faster than the CTA's.
4	How much attention should we pay to the World Baseball Classic?	There was one? Sorry, I've been caught up with the Hawks.	Pretty close attention. If you don't, Canada and Mexico will beat the crap out of you.	What other sport has the same potential to start a war between Canada and Mexico?	Enough to avoid catching a left hook from Canada's catcher.	Not sure. But they're literally fighting for attention.
5	Hitting nine 3-pointers in one half is like 1996 all over again.	... Timberlake and Samberg's revival of the D.I.A.B. guys on Saturday: Flawless.	... scoring 27 points. I was told there would be no math!	... sinking all four of your bags in one round of cornhole.	... hitting one 3-pointer, 11 2-pointers and two free throws. Is this like an ACT question or something?

ARE YOU BINGE EATING?

Is your eating out of control?
Do you feel disgusted or guilty after overeating?

If so, you may have binge eating disorder. Binge eating is the most common eating disorder and has the potential to impact the health of those diagnosed with the disorder. Doctors in your area are currently recruiting people to participate in a research study evaluating an investigational medication for binge eating disorder.

To be eligible to participate, you must be between the ages of 18 and 55.

Study-related care and medication will be provided at no cost to eligible participants and you may be compensated for time and travel.

It's not you—the madness is here

After finishing the regular season last in the Big East Conference, DePaul (11-20) hasn't had many highlights in 2012-13. But this is the time of year when even the downtrodden college hoops teams have hope. Just ask Liberty (14-20), which rose up to win the Big South conference title this weekend and punched its ticket to the NCAA tournament.

The Blue Demons will need a similarly spectacular run in the Big East tourney, which begins Tuesday in New York. Also hoping to guarantee themselves spots in the Big Dance this week are Illinois and Northwestern, which begin play in the Big Ten tournament Thursday.

Say it ain't so, D-Rose

Well this is discouraging. ESPN's Doris Burke reported Sunday that although Derrick Rose has been taking full contact in practice for well over a month, his hamstrings are "on fire" after those workouts. Rose added that he won't return to the court until he's past those issues, Burke said.

Capriati accused of battery

Former tennis star Jennifer Capriati has been investigated by North Palm Beach, Fla., police for numerous battery and stalking allegations by ex-boyfriend Ivan Brannan Jr.

A police report stemming from a Feb. 14 incident at a health club said there is probable cause to arrest Capriati for "battery for punching and pushing Brannan" and "stalking Brannan on a constant basis," according to the Palm Beach Post.

A spokesperson for Capriati denied the allegations, calling them "an over-exaggeration."

Exercise addict?

Chicago Tribune

Exercise is something most people don't get enough of. But for some dedicated fitness enthusiasts, working out can turn addictive.

Though there is no formal diagnosis, therapists consider compulsive exercise a behavioral disorder, one that can cause lasting physical harm or interfere with daily life. Excessive exercising is difficult to identify and treat because it easily is rationalized as a healthy behavior. The symptoms, however, are the opposite of what an athlete strives for: increased fatigue, injury, irritability and problems with work and relationships.

Too much exercise also may be surprisingly hard on the heart. A recent study published in Mayo Clinic Proceedings suggests that while moderate exercise prevents many common diseases and improves health and longevity, extreme endurance exercise, such as marathons and Ironman distance triathlons, can cause structural changes and damage to the heart and large arteries.

"Physical exercise, though not a drug, possesses many traits of a powerful pharmacolog-ic agent," said James O'Keefe, a cardiologist with Saint Luke's Health System in Kansas City, Mo., and lead author of the study. "A safe upper-dose limit potentially exists, beyond which the adverse effects of physical exercise, such as musculoskeletal trauma and cardiovascular stress, may outweigh its benefits."

Identifying a problem can be tricky because "the addiction comes in the form of a healthy habit," said Holly Parker, a personal trainer, psychologist and psychotherapist at Harvard University who specializes in the impact of exercise on mental health and exercise-based treatments.

But if the following five descriptions ring true, this "strongly suggests that the relationship with exercise is destructive and help to break this pattern may be needed," Parker said. Therapists can help. Also consider seeing a health and fitness professional, such as a certified personal trainer, to learn more about healthy levels of exercise, Parker suggested. "Social support is also very important for coping and making healthy changes," she said.

1 Exercise starts taking away from other parts of your life, such as relationships, work, etc. and/or you spend an excessive amount of time thinking about exercise and planning around it, such that it markedly interferes with your ability to focus on other parts of life.

2 You feel extremely anxious and upset whenever your workout is interrupted or you can't exercise.

3 You are spending several hours (three or more) at the gym on an almost daily basis and you're not a professional athlete.

4 You continue to exercise even when you're very sick or injured.

5 The people you care about are expressing concerns about how much you exercise.

Following “Stoker” and 2012’s “Bernie,” “Dead Man Down” marks the second time in two weeks and the third time in 10 months that a movie has featured a dead body in a freezer. Criminals need new storage ideas. Perhaps they’d enjoy a group outing to the Container Store.

Not that familiarity kills “Dead Man Down,” which does resemble 100 other revenge sagas while feebly attempting to capture the moody toughness of “Drive.” No, “Dead Man Down” simply doesn’t make sense. Out to avenge his murdered wife and daughter, Victor (Colin Farrell) methodically leaves clues behind for bad guys to follow, yet he’s also worried that they’re catching onto him. Meanwhile, Victor’s neighbor Beatrice (Noomi Rapace), who saw him kill a man, blackmails Victor into killing the drunken driver responsible for the accident that led to the arguably mild scars on her face. Certainly an incident like this would be traumatic—particularly for a former beautician, Beatrice suggests—but gutless writer J.H. Wyman (“The Mexican”) makes sure Beatrice isn’t too damaged to be a safe love interest.

Speaking of which: Recovery is wonderful, but when a movie revolves around a guy seeking vengeance for the death of his family, I prefer you don’t introduce a new owner of his heart. Let the guy focus and heal. Instead, Victor procrastinates and mindlessly puts someone he is supposed to care about in danger.

Once again, director Niels Arden Oplev (who directed Rapace in the Swedish “The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo”) botches the pacing, so a long movie drags even more. WWE Studios surely can do a more boorish film than the persistently bleak “Dead

Colin Farrell in ‘Dead Man Down’

Man Down,” but maybe not one that’s more outrageously convoluted. Viewers don’t care about a complicated, violent game when they can barely identify the players before a gunfight breaks out. The chief baddie, weakly played by Terrence Howard, comes off as too dumb and frustrated to arrive anywhere near intimidating.

Somehow this poor excuse for a genre flick acquired an overqualified supporting cast, including Oscar-winner F. Murray Abraham and ever-welcome French cinema icon Isabelle Huppert (“Amour”). The villainous, generic Albanians, however, seem to have wandered over from the set of “Taken 2.” I don’t know why we keep trying to upset Albania, and here’s another question: What would be an example of a dead man up? “Weekend at Bernie’s”?

Beyoncé

Beyoncé-Lady Gaga collabo in the works?

Los Angeles Times

For months, the online rumor mill has churned with suspicions that Beyoncé and Lady Gaga would reunite for a third collaboration, a single called "Ratchet."

Eagle-eyed fans pointed to the Instagram accounts of the two formidable pop divas as proof that a new collaboration is brewing.

The rumors started when Beyoncé posted a set of pictures of her hoop earrings—engraved with the word "Ratchet"—on the photo-sharing website. In one, the singer rocks the chunky accessory and a fitted Houston Rockets cap on what appears to be a set.

Adding to the theory was an Instagram snap of Gaga sporting her own hoops engraved with the word. For the uninformed, "ratchet" is slang for an around-the-way girl from the 'hood (not to be confused with having a "ratchet" state of mind or "ratchetness," which is unsavory behavior that's largely unprintable).

Naturally, bamboo hoop earrings do not a single make. But Gaga spilled the beans late last year that she had finished a track by the same name featuring firecracker rapper Azealia Banks. She also told a fan via Twitter that there would be a sequel to "Telephone," the first of two collaborations Gaga and Bey released.

A short snippet of a beat allegedly produced by Gaga collaborator DJ White Shadow surfaced online in January, and Rihanna's name also was thrown into the mix after the singer tweeted Gaga lyrics with the hashtag of, you guessed it, "ratchet."

Banks added the latest smoking gun during a interview with Australian radio station George FM early last week when she was quizzed about collaborating with other artists.

"I like working by myself; not to say I don't like collaborating with other people but, like, I never know what to do. I can't really absorb the vibe," she said before catching herself. "I'm lying because I've collaborated with Lady Gaga and Beyoncé and Kanye West."

Though she didn't confirm the speculated new single, it only fueled the fire, especially after a handwritten track list for Beyoncé's highly anticipated album mysteriously surfaced later in the week.

The way-too-good-to-be-true list for the album (supposedly called "Mrs. Carter," after her upcoming world tour) features collaborations with husband Jay-Z, Justin Timberlake, Ne-Yo, Sia and Rihanna, with "Ratchet" opening the record.

And so the plot thickens.

'Dallas' lays iconic J.R. Ewing to rest

MCT

When the cast of "Dallas" gathered to shoot Monday's episode, in which Larry Hagman's iconic character, J.R. Ewing, is laid to rest, some tears were shed, according to star Patrick Duffy. But there were plenty of laughs, too.

"It turned out to be a true party—anything but a wake," said Duffy of the episode that brings back several fan favorites. "While we were mourning J.R., we were also celebrating Larry."

Hagman had shot seven Season 2 episodes of "Dallas" before dying in November of complications from a previous bout with cancer. His death forced "Dallas" showrunner Cynthia Cidre and her writers to scramble to rework the second half of the season and plan an on-screen funeral for J.R.

Among the "Dallas" vets who returned to Southfork Ranch for Monday's swan song were Ted Shackelford (Gary Ewing), Steve Kanaly (Ray Krebbs) and Charlene Tilton (Lucy Ewing).

"Believe me, it was like a high school reunion. Every single person fit in perfectly, and it was so wonderful to have them back," said Duffy, who plays J.R.'s brother, Bobby. "I missed people who weren't there. I wish it could have been an even bigger thing, but obviously you can't do that and maintain the integrity of the show."

Although Hagman's J.R. was the centerpiece of the original "Dallas," he had shifted to a secondary role in the reboot as the younger generation of Ewings—led by Josh Henderson and Jesse Metcalfe—assumed more of the spotlight.

Still, for a lot of fans, J.R. epitomized "Dallas" and his presence was felt even when he was off screen. Well aware of that, Cidre and her writers devised a plot line in which the late J.R. will have an effect on ensuing episodes. The character becomes a victim of what initially looks to be a random mugging. But as it is so often the case with J.R., nothing is as it appears.

And apparently, that's exactly the way Hagman would have wanted it.

CBS FILE

"Dallas" now finds itself in the position of other shows that have had to carry on after the death of a key actor. Here are two famous examples:

» "8 Simple Rules for Dating My Teenage Daughter" (ABC): Regrouped in 2003 after John Ritter died of an aortic dissection.

» "Spartacus" (Starz): Lead Andy Whitfield left to be treated for non-Hodgkin's lymphoma; he died in 2011.

"If Larry knew there would be a postmortem story line revolving around a whodunit that had lots of people talking about him," Duffy said, "he'd be the happiest actor on the planet."

EMMA DONOGHUE

The Chicago Public Library partners with the Columbia College Fiction Writing Department to present the 17th Annual Story Week Festival of Writers: Vision and Voice. Free events taking place at the Harold Washington Library Center on Wednesday, March 20 include a conversation with novelist Emma Donoghue, author of the national bestseller Room and host Karen Osborne at 3:30 p.m. A book signing follows upstairs in the lobby. Later in the day at 6 p.m., a second event features Emma Donoghue reading and discussing her book Room with host Garnett Kilberg Cohen. Both programs take place in the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium, 400 South State St. For more information, visit chicagopubliclibrary.org, or call (312) 747-4050. Photo Credit: Nina Subin.

GERRY SOUTER

The Society of Midland Authors presents author Gerry Souter for a discussion of his new book American Shooter: A Personal History of Gun Culture in the United States at the Chicago Public Library. The free program takes place on Tuesday, March 12 at 6 p.m. in the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium, Lower Level, at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St. In American Shooter, Souter takes a look at gun ownership, handgun bans and the controversy over how to interpret the Second Amendment from a liberal gun owner's point of view. The Society of Midland Authors is an organization established in 1915 for published authors in the Midwest. For additional information, visit chicagopubliclibrary.org, or call 312-747-4050.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

People could be pressuring you to make certain romantic decisions. Venus is reminding you that it's your life, not theirs.

Aries March 21-April 19

As Mars moves into your sign, you'll get something started. You'll finally have the nerve to ask somebody luscious out for a date.

Taurus April 20-May 20

You and your honey have been having more feuds than the Hatfields and the McCoys. But as Mercury puts out cozy vibes, you're ready to make peace. At last, you'll stop complaining about his piles of dirty socks or her annoying friends.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Mercury finally goes direct this week, and sanity will return. You'll be less freaked out about big stuff like moving in with someone, buying a house or having a kid.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Be practical. Maybe you'll have to settle for a lover who is more of a seven than a 10. Still, Venus says things are looking up.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You could become madly attracted to someone who is completely wrong for you, thanks to a crazy moon. But try not to break up that minister's marriage. You're not thinking clearly.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You've been accumulating extra frown lines as your love life has become frustrating. But with Mercury's help, things will make sense again.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

With Mars moving opposite your sign, try to chill out. Even though you're eager for results, forcing things will simply make the situation worse.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

You'll enjoy hanging out with practical people as the moon reminds you that you still have a lot to learn about work, finances and generating multiple streams of income. Invite a banker out for lunch.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

The moon opposite your sign is making you paranoid. You're freaking out about that new cutie you met, worrying that she has a secret life as a wanted criminal.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

A romantic situation from your past could surface again as Pluto stirs up nostalgia. Your ex-fiancee will look you up on Facebook, asking if you're still single.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Your first impressions could be off as the moon messes with your intuition. You'll meet somebody perfect, only to find out that he keeps a creepy knife collection and likes to talk about his "trophies."

THIS WEEK

Pro wrestler Lisa Marie Varon—currently known as Tara in TNA Wrestling and previously known as Victoria during her WWE days—will open her Lincoln Park restaurant, The Squared Circle, on Thursday.

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

» @aboutluisgomez

Midway through my conversation with Imagine Dragons lead singer Dan Reynolds and his wife, Aja Volkman, in Nellcote's private dining area last week, Nico Vega, whose band, Nico Vega, opened for Imagine Dragons earlier that night at the House of Blues—lifted up a blanket to reveal the couple's 7-month-old daughter, Arrow Eve. She had been sleeping next to Volkman in the booth the entire time.

"She sleeps through the craziness," Reynolds said of his daughter, who slept as Hey Champ singer Saam Hagshenas DJed less than 50 feet away and guests, including opening act Atlas Genius, mingled. "She thrives in this."

Imagine Dragons have been touring almost nonstop since forming in 2008, but the "craziness" seems to have just begun for the Las Vegas quartet. Their songs are everywhere these days: "Radioactive" is featured in the movie trailer for "The Host," "It's Time" was featured in an episode of Fox's "Glee" and the trailer for "The Perks of Being a Wallflower" and "On Top of the World" was sung by a children's choir at President Obama's January inauguration and is featured in the trailer for "The Croods."

Surprisingly, the 25-year-old Reynolds said he got the biggest kick out of hearing one of his songs in a video game.

"It sounds nerdy, but I grew up playing the FIFA [soccer] games my whole life and always loved the soundtracks," said Reynolds, who seemed most excited talking about his team of choice in the game, Brazil. "Having my song come on [in 'FIFA 13'] was better than any movie or commercial we've been in."

As often is the case with bands on the rise, Reynolds hasn't had much time to enjoy Imagine Dragons' recent success due to the constant touring and TV and radio appearances—not that he's complaining. Reynolds has become used to waking up in a new city almost every day and said he didn't know what to do with himself when the band had two days off around Christmas.

He does, however, make it a point to rest whenever he can on the road. That's what the 6-foot-4 rocker claimed he normally does after shows. He said he made an exception for Nellcote because they were celebrating Volkman's and his keyboardist's birthdays. (Nellcote brought out a two-tiered chocolate cake for the festivities and serenaded the guests with "Happy Birthday.")

The show that night was the first of two concerts at the House of Blues. It's hard to believe it was just April that Imagine Dragons were opening for The Jezabels at Lincoln Hall.

"A year ago, we were playing for, like, 40 people," Reynolds said of headlining shows. "Before every gig we were peeking behind the curtain like, 'Oh man, it's only half-full tonight.' We'd been living on people's couches and just scraping by. Now we're at the point where everything is sold out beforehand. We can actually breathe and enjoy the music. It's the best feeling ever."

THE DIGIT
$80.3 MILLION

That's how much "Oz the Great and Powerful" earned in its debut weekend to finish No. 1 at the domestic box office, Reuters reports. And in to-be-expected news: Disney already is preparing a sequel, variety.com reports.

Mindy Kaling

More Mindy

The star of "The Mindy Project" is taking on another project: writing her second book. During her free time before starting the second season of her show, Mindy Kaling says she will write an as-yet-untitled book about "the high highs and low lows of the past 18 months," deadline.com reports. Kaling also revealed she will return to "The Office" for its series finale. "I've just read the pages, and it's a really amazing episode of television," she said.

Taste of youth

Hot off a big night at the Grammys, Fun. will headline the opening night of Taste of Chicago on July 10 in Grant Park, fest organizers announced. The group will perform at the Petrillo Music Shell after California indie rockers Delta Spirit. Stay tuned for info on tickets, which will be available in May.

HOT DATE
APRIL 13

That's when Psy will release his follow-up single to "Gangnam Style." You might have heard of it.

Rainbow bright

Former "Girls Next Door" star Holly Madison is sticking up for the name she gave her newborn daughter, Rainbow Aurora. "I want my daughter to be proud of who she is and learn to speak up and stand up for herself at a young age," she wrote on her website. Well, that name will do the trick.

Ratings in a box

If you didn't see Justin Timberlake's appearance on "Saturday Night Live," check it out on hulu.com. It featured cameos galore and a reunion with Andy Samberg—and scored "SNL" its best ratings since Charles Barkley hosted in January 2012, billboard.com reports.
